Have you grieved for the world lately?

Until you come to terms with what we've lost, you won't be able to create the world that could be.

